

THE PRACTICAL COMMUNIST SCRIPT

"God, who is that? Can you see him? Can you hear him? No. Is God dressing you and feeding you? No. It isn't God. It is the Communist Party."

This quote was taken from a typical Communist first grade reader. It is a sample of what the Communist has planned for your children.

The film you are about to see deals with the Practical Communist and the methods he has used to establish and maintain control over $\frac{1}{3}$ of the world.

This record was made by the Communists; all we will attempt to do is report it.

Popular opinion in the United States holds that the Communists are mellowing. But is it true? In this film we will present part of the record of the Practical Communist, then you may judge for yourself.

We refer to the Communist as practical because the practical side of the Red conspiracy is very different from the mask of humanitarianism they display to the world for propaganda purposes.

Americans are prone to judge others as they judge themselves, but to evaluate conspirators by our standards is suicidal. Our morality is based upon the laws of God as stated in the Ten Commandments. The Communist has a much different view of truth and morality. Lenin stated: "The basis of Communist morality is the struggle for Communism."¹

In other words, anything that helps Communism is good and true; anything opposed to Communism is false and evil. Advancing Communism then, is the highest good, even if it involves criminal acts. The Reds by their own definition maintain, "Marxist Communist morality knows no dogmatism, has no norms or rules which would be equally applicable to all situations."²

When people claim that Communism is changing, they are correct; that is, they are correct if they say that the Communists change their tactics whenever it is to their advantage. But one thing the Communists have never changed, denied or denounced — their goal of conquering the entire world. Khrushchev proclaimed, "Those who think we are no longer Marxist-Leninists deceive themselves. That will not happen until shrimps learn to whistle."³

To this International Criminal, the end justifies the means. Therefore, the Practical Communist will do anything to achieve world domination, no matter how immoral or brutal it might be by our standards. The use of force, violence and terror is fundamental to Communists. Brutality is a calculated part of their strategy. The Practical Communist realizes the value of terror in destroying the "will to resist." Lenin dictated its use when he stated, "We have never rejected terror on principle, nor can we do so."⁴

The current target for Communist conquest is Viet Nam. The use of terror and brutality by the Communist is described by Dr. Tom Dooley, the brave American doctor who lived among the Viet Nameese until his tragic death: "What do you do for children who have had chopsticks driven into their inner ears? Or for old women whose brittle collar bones have been shattered by rifle butts? How do you treat an old priest who has had nails driven into his skull to make a travesty of the Crown of Thorns?"⁵ This girl lost her arm when the Viet Cong exploded a mine beneath a civilian bus.

This woman and her baby were brutally assaulted by Viet Cong guerillas. Dr. Dooley describes another favorite device of the Communists: "The Communist Viet Minh often would tear an ear partially off with a pincer like a pair of pliers and leave the ear dangling. That was one penalty for the crime of listening to evil words. The evil words were the words of the Lord's Prayer: Our Father, Who art in Heaven, hallowed be Thy name."⁶

No one is immune from Communist brutality. Captured American G.I.'s are subjected to the most inhuman treatment possible.

Navy Lt. (J.G.) Everett Alvarez of San Jose, California was captured by the Viet Cong and dragged through the streets of North Viet Nam with a rope around his neck. The North Viet Nameese were encouraged to spit on him. Lt. Alvarez is still a Communist prisoner.

Viet Nam is the current victim of Communist imperialism, but the methods used are as old as Communism.

Let us take a brief look at how the Practical Communist has used terror to build his prison empire that now houses one billion of your fellow human beings as inmates.

Russia . . . Communists had been operating in virtually every country in the world prior to 1917. These Communists flocked to Russia to aid in the civil war so that Communism would have a homeland. In this, their initial conquest, they set the pattern for rising to power over a mountain of corpses.

While the fighting was in progress, the Communists showed their opponents no mercy.

One of the many crimes committed against Russians took place in the Ukraine in the early 1930's. The farmers of the Ukraine resisted having their homes and crops seized by the state. The government retaliated by causing a man made famine which, according to Ukrainian refugees, caused the death by slow starvation of at least six million men, women and children.⁷

"When you kill a few people, it is murder, when you kill millions, it is only a statistic."

The man who carried out Stalin's order to murder six million Ukrainians was Nikita Khrushchev. Khrushchev was Stalin's hatchet man and earned his nickname, "Butcher of the Ukraine." Assisting Khrushchev in the bloodletting was the current titular head of the Communist conspiracy, Leonid Brezhnev.

According to the sworn testimony of a Russian refugee, "Brutality has very much increased, even as compared to the Stalin regime. The number of slave labor camps has increased from 174 under Stalin to 900 under Khrushchev."⁸ This report stated that Khrushchev had fooled gullible Westerners by simply changing the names and locations of camps. It took a Congressional Committee seven volumes to reproduce the testimony from refugees concerning the crimes of Khrushchev.

To chronicle even a fraction of the savage crimes committed by the Communists against the Russian citizens requires volumes. A refugee from the Soviet Republic of Georgia testified to a Congressional Committee that in Georgia alone, "Hundreds of thousands of party members, professors, students, journalists, writers, artists, workers, engineers, peasants, and clergy were executed . . . or banished to Siberia."⁹

Another device used by the Practical Communist to subjugate conquered peoples is re-settlement or deportation. The object being to destroy family ties or any ties the people have with the land. Russia today is made up of once independent countries such as Georgia, Byelorussia, and the Ukraine. They had their own sense of patriotism, their own culture, traditions, and even their own language.

Before Communism was secure, all of this had to be destroyed. The Practical Communist herded millions of human beings into freight cars like cattle and transported them thousands of miles to what was, for all practical purposes, a foreign country. According to the testimony of survivors, the cars were so crowded that there was no room to lie down nor were there any toilet facilities. The car doors were never opened until the destination was reached and many were already dead from hunger, filth and disease.¹⁰

A refugee from Soviet Turkistan testified before a Congressional Committee, "May I emphasize that these statistics cannot illustrate or convey the human suffering, the deprivation of liberty, and the inhumanity which is involved in these forced deportations. Remember, these resettlements are carried out at the threat of the lives of the men, women, and children who are resettled in a strange land, within the shadow of the Soviet military force and under the ever watchful eye of the secret police."¹¹

In 1940, having successfully liquidated all potential resistance in Russia, the Communists swallowed-up the Baltic countries of Latvia, Estonia, and Lithuania. Again it was the same Communist tactic of torturing and murdering all of the potential opposition while talking of peace and prosperity.

As usual, the Communists released criminals from jail and made of them political commissars to enforce Red rule. Who better to enforce terrorism than the habitual criminal?

In every country conquered by the Practical Communist, the clergy becomes a special target for Communist atrocities. Because of their faith in God, the clergy symbolize hope for freedom and thus must be liquidated and replaced with Communists posing as clergymen.

Lenin wrote, "The fight against religion must not be confined to abstract ideological preaching. The fight must be linked up with the concrete practical work of the class movement."¹² This is the concrete practical work he was speaking of.

These eight Lithuanian priests were tortured, disembowled, and thrown into a mass grave.¹³

Poland was invaded by both German and Russia in September, 1939. The Communist Secret Police began a systematic round-up of Poland's intellectual and military leadership and they were deported to Russia. Fifteen thousand Poles disappeared forever in what a Congressional Investigating Committee called a "calculated plot to eliminate all Polish leaders who subsequently would have opposed the Soviet's plans for Communizing Poland."¹⁴

On April 15, 1943, mass graves were discovered at Katyn Forest in Russia. Medical experts from neutral countries signed a protocol establishing that these bodies were Polish officers massacred in the Spring of 1940. The bodies had their hands tied with Russian rope and were shot in the back of the head with Russian bullets.¹⁵

As one by one the countries of Eastern Europe fell to Communism, Byelorussia, Ukraine, East Poland, Northern Romania, Southern Finland, Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Poland, Bulgaria, Tannu Tava, East Prussia, Romania, Southern Sakhalin, Mongolia, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, East Germany, the same formula was repeated time and again to eliminate opposition. The Communists do not even limit their brutalities to adults. Here is a 14-year-old Polish boy after he was released from a Communist forced labor camp.¹⁶

This young Polish girl was up-rooted from her homeland and taken to a Russian Slave Labor Camp.

These three Polish children were deported to a slave labor camp near the Caspian Sea.¹⁷

The refugee who presented these pictures to a Congressional Investigating Committee states, ". . . they are an accurate reproduction of what our grandchildren here in this country can expect."¹⁸

China was Communism's largest conquest. Only a few short years after the Practical Communists seized power, former Ambassador Joseph C. Grew revealed that the Communists had liquidated 20 million human beings. Millions murdered are only a statistic to the Practical Communist. Said Ambassador Grew:

"The appalling figures on murders committed by the Communist government are neither propaganda, exaggerations, nor guesses. Since the Communists drove the Nationalists off the mainland in 1949, official accounts in Red newspapers have listed the execution of millions of Chinese . . . The real total of Chinese deaths probably would total a great deal more than the estimates. Few Chinese marked for death had a chance to escape their executioners. The Communists masked their real intentions with a deceptively mild, restrained and orderly entry into power."¹⁹

Korea . . . June, 1950, the Communist armies invade South Korea. As time passed, a great deal of evidence of Communist atrocities against American soldiers emerged, not to mention native Koreans. A Senate Investigating Committee reported, "The evidence before the subcommittee conclusively proves that American prisoners of war who were not deliberately murdered at the time of capture, were beaten, wounded, starved and tortured, forced to march long distances without benefit of adequate food, water, clothing or medical care to Communist prison camps, and there to experience further acts of human indignities."²⁰ This is an American airman tortured to death with heated, sharpened, bamboo spears.²¹

This American soldier never lived to tell you the truth about the Practical Communist. He is one of the 5th Cavalry Regiment who was captured, had his hands tied behind his back, and then was machine gunned.²²

Your fellow countrymen in this picture were not as fortunate as was Sergeant Barry Rhoden. This was his testimony to the Senate Committee. "The officer handed me a small piece of paper . . .

mimeographed, 'You are about to die the most horrible kind of death.' . . . After reading the piece of paper, I was shot in the back. The force of the bullet knocked me down and I lay there pretending that I was dead, and praying while they shot the other fellows. After they shot the other fellows, they stepped over me, bayoneted the other fellows a couple of times and left."²³

Are any of your relatives or neighbors in this picture? This is what was happening as the practical Communists hypocritically proclaimed their desire for peace. An American Colonel made this statement before the Committee, "I believe that there was a very deliberate definite pattern established indicating that these instances are not the result of isolated acts, but an overall plan to deliberately exterminate our troops."²⁴

This Congressional Committee found evidence that over 5,000 American soldiers were deliberately and brutally murdered by the Communists in Korea.²⁵

Hungary . . . in 1956 the Hungarian people revolted against their Communist slavemasters. It began with peaceful demonstrations by thousands of students and workers against Communist tyranny.

This is the first victim of the Communists during the revolution. She was an un-armed university student shot by the secret police as an example to others.²⁶

The revolution did not remain peaceful long, as the Red Army attacked the demonstrators. Communist leaders agreed to a truce and as soon as the Hungarians laid down their arms, the Communists betrayed the truce and brought the Russian Army back into the country.

John Santo is a Hungarian who joined the Communist Party while a student in the United States. He returned to Hungary in 1949 expecting to find a "worker's paradise." Santo became a high official in the Communist government, but during the 1956 revolution fled to freedom. He later described life in the "worker's paradise" to a Congressional Committee. "The seven years of my life in People's Democratic Hungary laid bare for me as nothing else could, the inhumanity, the anti-humanity, the lawlessness, the complete lack of any moral and ethical standards of that system."²⁷

Regarding the brutality used in suppressing the Hungarian Revolution, Santos gave eye-witness testimony, "I have seen innocent blood shed without any pretext or provocation . . . during the second attack by the Russian Red Army forces, tanks were patrolling the streets for the purpose of terrorizing the population into submission. Bread was scarce, and a line formed before a bakery to purchase bread. One of the Russian tanks pulled into position and shelled that bread-line, killing mercilessly women who simply wanted a loaf of bread for their families . . . this was war against the unarmed womenfolk of Budapest, designed to terrorize the population into submission, into . . . blind, subservient obedience."²⁸

Africa . . . the continent of Africa is one of Communism's prime targets. In Africa, as in Asia, and North and South America, the Communists use the slogan of "national liberation" as a mask to hide Red imperialism.

The first of many successful National Liberation movements in Africa was lead by Jomo Kenyetta in Kenya, Kenyetta, according to an official British government report, was taken to Russia in 1929 for Revolutionary training.²⁹ He returned to Africa and formed the infamous Mau-Mau organization, that terrorized Africa in the 1950's. The purposes of the Mau-Mau, according to the British government, were, "to kill Europeans, to steal fire arms, to kill if ordered no matter who is to be the victim, even one's own father or brother. When killing, to cut off the heads, extract the eyeballs and drink the liquid from them."³⁰

Jomo Kenyetta is now premier of Kenya and his appointee sits in the United Nations.

Cuba . . . The Communist trail of terror invades the New World. In 1959, Fidel Castro seized power in strife torn Cuba. The day after his take-over the executions began.

These photographs were taken inside Cuba and smuggled into the United States. This is the drumhead justice under the man once called the George Washington of Cuba.

Here is Fidel's brother, Raul, administering justice 90 miles from the United States.

Jose Norman, a Cuban refugee reports that the following figures have come from the Cuban underground. In a country whose population is $\frac{1}{4}$ that of California, there are 100,000 political prisoners (70,000 in prisons and 30,000 in concentration camps and prison farms). Thirty thousand have been executed or shot while resisting Castro (half of these were peasants and workers).

Much of Castro's success, as with other Communists, was due to the fact that this was part of an interlocking conspiracy. Many Americans mistakenly ridicule the idea of a conspiracy, but Lenin did not. He demanded, "A small tight kernel of reliable, experienced and steeled workers with responsible agents . . . connected by all the rules of conspiracy."³¹

Algeria . . . Algeria is a textbook example of how the Practical Communist, using a combination of humanitarian slogans and terror can accomplish the take over of a country while commanding the allegiance of less than 3% of its citizens.

The Communists successfully maneuvered the Moslem citizens into a civil war with the French. Yet the worst atrocities committed by the Communist FLN were against their fellow Moslems to keep them in line. The tactic was to cut the throats of any Moslem opposed to the Communist revolution.

Angola . . . Angola is a pro-Western colony in Africa. The leader of the Communist war of "national liberation" in Angola is Holden Roberto. In 1960, Roberto was sent by the Russians to Moscow for training in guerilla warfare.

In 1961, using the slogan "Long Live Communism," Roberto lead bloody riots in Angola. The Communists massacred and mutilated priests, peasants, plantation owners, and blacks and whites of both sexes.

Newspapers reported live women were sawed in pieces, children's eyes gouged out, Nuns raped and tortured to death.³²

Brigadier General Frank L. Howley writes of Holden Roberto's National Liberation activities, "It all adds up to a picture replete with gruesome episodes of fetishist body chopping, ritual cannibalism and tribal hatred".³³

The reason for the similarity between the Mau-Mau uprising and the riots in Angola is that the leaders of both were trained by the Communists. These horrors have been repeated in Algeria, the Congo, Guinea, and Ghana. They will be repeated in the years ahead in any African nation not already controlled by the Practical Communist.

The final and ultimate target of the Practical Communist is the United States. Time requires that this film concentrate on only one prong of the Communist offensive in the United States; the so-called "National Liberation Movement." Those to be liberated are the American Negroes. The Communists exploit racial tensions in this country, not because they want to improve the lot of the Negro, but because they see him as cannon fodder in a Communist instigated revolution. Benjamin Gitlow, a former top Communist official who left the party, testified before a Congressional Committee, "In the racial civil war the Communists envisaged, they are sure the Negroes will be in the front ranks, the shock troops of the Communist Revolution."³⁴

Summer 1964, beginning in Harlem and continuing throughout a dozen major American cities, riots broke out killing and maiming American citizens and destroying millions of dollars worth of property.

July 18, riots broke out in several sections of New York City simultaneously. Policemen were attacked and beaten. According to the New York Journal American, organizers kept in contact with each other by walkie talkie.³⁵ Bands of looters roamed the streets and snipers waited on roof tops.

One of its leaders was Jesse Gray. Gray was identified as a Communist organizer in Harlem by Albert Gaillard before the House Committee on Un-American Activities, February 3, 1960. Gaillard quoted Communist Gray as saying, "You cannot bring the idea of Communism over to the Negro youth. You have it on a social basis and then you can trick them into this youth movement.”³⁶

The New York Daily News reported, “A five-month investigation by dozens of top detectives, working in close cooperation with the FBI, has disclosed widespread Communist infiltration — so much so that they command 1,000 young fanatics dedicated to violence.”³⁷

The violent insurrection that took place in the Watts section of Los Angeles in August 1965 demonstrated the growing crescendo of burning, looting and killing that threatens to tear America asunder and to tie down the American military thus giving the Communists a free hand overseas.

After the riots, a Communist Party, Marxist-Leninist, leader Michael Laski, who operates in Watts, boasted of having started the rebellion that killed 34 people and did 50 million dollars in damage. Laski's admission rated only a small news story and was un-reported in most newspapers.³⁸

Again we see the Practical Communist's tactic of using terror to pour salt in existing wounds, to intensify problems and keep men of good will, regardless of their color, from meeting in a rational atmosphere to solve their problems. By inciting black against white, and also white against black, the practical Communist has a blueprint for enslaving all Americans.

William Worthy, writing in a recent issue of Esquire Magazine quoted this warning and predictions:

“Black youth with the right orientation can stop this entire country. Small bands can damage the eight major dams that supply most of the electricity.

“Gasoline can be poured into sewer systems . . . and then ignited; this would burn out communication lines in an entire city . . . What would emerge from this: Most likely guerilla warfare. We call the whites ‘cream puffs.’ We feel that when TV stops their world will almost come to an end . . . They will sit and wait for television to come back on.”³⁹

A word of caution. Don't play the Practical Communist's game by unfairly blaming all Negroes for this situation. Put the blame where it belongs — on the Communists.

This has been the Practical Communist at work from Russia to the United States. As you can see, he is no humanitarian, he cares nothing for the working man, or the rights of minorities. His humanitarian propaganda is a false mask to disguise his evil intentions.

The Practical Communist has only one worry. That you, the American citizen, his last remaining stumbling block to world domination, will wake up and leave your TV sets before it is too late. His allies are complacency, apathy and cliché, “it can't happen here.”

You will be tempted to ignore what you have just seen; or to rationalize that it is exaggerated or no longer relevant. It is human nature to minimize bad news. Ego plays a big part in clinging to old ideas even when they are proven wrong. This is what the Practical Communist hopes you will do. One billion human beings in thirty-five other countries also lulled themselves into a dream world murmuring, “it can't happen here.”

There are those who would have you believe that we can change the Communists by being patient, engaging in cultural exchanges, negotiations and loaning them our money. History has proven time and time again that those who attempt to pacify barbarians are always subjected to the brutality they hope to avoid.

Communists mellowing? Where? On the Berlin Wall? In Viet Nam? In Santo Domingo? In Cuba? In Harlem?

The Communist is even a worse criminal than the barbarian who knows only crude terror. The Communist leaders are educated, they have intentionally used terror and brutality, turned their backs on humanity, for their own selfish goals of world power. The Communist is a criminal and should be treated as such.

Unless Americans awaken to the tactics of this world conspiracy, the heritage we pass on to our children will be one of inhuman bondage, not freedom.

It can't happen here? Well, what are you doing to make sure it won't?
